Dr. Heliferich, with regard to the charge of inflation of German paper circulation, said the war credit banks, mortgage banks and insurance companies never issued banknotes. His said also that the Reichsbank state ments did not mention an ounce of gold which was not in the bank's vault. He said reports of riots in Germany in which hungry women were shot down by the military were inventions. As to future taxes in Germany the secretary said the war was costing two shillings per head of the population in Germany.
